PREFACE

THE present edition is founded on the following authorities:

1. C^k = a Cingalese MS. in the Copenhagen Royal Library (Westergaard, Cat. Cod. Pal. xix.).

2. C^b = a Cingalese MS. in the British Museum, Add. 27, 469.

3. B^a = a Burmese MS. in the Library of the Royal Asiatic Society, London.

4. B^i = a Burmese MS. in the Phayre Collection of the India Office Library (J.P.T.S., 1882, p. 60).

5. B^m = a Burmese MS. in the Mandalay Collection of the India Office Library, 67 (159) (see J.P.T.S., 1896, p. 24). This MS. seems closely to agree with another Mandalay MS., 68 (147) ibid., to judge from the notes of Professor Windisch to Padhāna- and Pabbajjā-Sutta (see "Māra und Buddha," 1895, pp. 3 and 246).

6. S^d = a fragment of a Siamese MS. containing only the Salla-Sutta (Cambodgian character), found among a collection of Jātakas, presented to the University Library of Copenhagen by Prince Devawongse.[1]

7. M^k = a Cingalese MS. of the Majjhima-Nikāya in the Copenhagen Royal Library (Westergaard, Cat. Cod. Pal. vi.), used for the text of Sela- and Vāseṭṭha-Sutta.

8. Pj. = Paramatthajotikā (Buddhaghosa's Commentary on Sutta-Nipāta) in two Cingalese MSS.—viz., $Pj.^k$, contained in the same volume as C^k above,[2] and $Pj.^g$, a Cingalese paper transcript, presented to the Pali Text Society by E. Gooneratne Mudaliyar. Among several lacunæ in these two MSS. there is one common to both (viz., the commentary on vv. 953^c-964^e), and here we had recourse to a transcript, made by Professor Fausböll, from the commentary contained in B^a (preserved in the Fausböll Collection of the Copenhagen University Library).

9. Ps. = Papañcasūdanī, Trenckner's transcript of a Cingalese MS. in the Copenhagen Royal Library (Westergaard, Cat. Cod. Pal. vii.), cf M^k above.

10. Nidd. = Niddesa, the printed text in the King of Siam's edition of Tipiṭaka, vol. xxvi. (Mahāniddesa, commentary on Aṭṭhaka-Vagga), and vol. xxvii. (Cūḷaniddesa, commentary on Parāyana-Vagga and Khaggavisāṇa-Sutta).

In constituting the text of Sutta-Nipāta we have, of course, chiefly had recourse to the editio princeps of Fausböll (Fsb.), 1885 (edited by the Pali Text Society),[1] but it was necessary to verify the text and notes, not only by means of Fausböll's original transcript, but also to compare them with the excellent transcript of C^k made by V. Trenckner (preserved in the Trenckner Collection Nr. 8 in the Copenhagen University Library). This transcript contains also a most valuable and complete collation of C^b B^{ai}; thus our knowledge of these three MSS. is based on Fausböll's and Trenckner's statements.[2] On the other hand, we know B^m only through the collation of Fausböll, inserted in his hand-copy of his edition (now in the University Library, Copenhagen). Unfortunately we have not had the use of this collation before the printing of pp. 1-32, and therefore the readings of B^m are only found in our notes from p. 33 to end.[3] These materials we have arranged

[1] The Cingalese impression (1891) we have had at hand, but after several trials we made sure that it does not present anything new beyond Fsb. Likewise, we have left the impression in the King of Siam's edition out of consideration, as well as the Sutta-Nipāta text itself in Niddesa, both showing further emendations in the Burmese manner, and besides being influenced by Fsb.

[2] Differences between our apparatus criticus and that of Fsb. are due to (1) misprints in Fsb., (2) more accurate statements of Trenckner, and (3) our own examination of C^k.

[3] Readers are requested to supply the notes on pp. 1-32 with the following additions:

thus, that we have given our text chiefly from C^{kb} Pj., the notes representing the Burmese redaction. Our best authority for the text and its interpretation is, of course, Buddhaghosa, as far as he gives a clear explanation, and where our MSS. of his commentary were not too corrupt. Sometimes he refers to more than one reading, and such various readings we have given by adding "and" (= iti pi pāṭho). His position of dependence on the tradition in Niddesa we have occasionally indicated by the abbreviation < Nidd. Where the abbreviation Pj. is put within ( ) it denotes that the reading in question is not supported by any explanation of the commentator, and accordingly has no more value than a various reading in C^{kb}.

Our verse numbers agree with Fsb., whose page numbers are found in the margin, whilst the metrical emendations are referred to only in the notes. In printing the verses we have tried to distinguish the different metres, and have accordingly let the çloka stand in two lines.

With regard to the spelling of Pali words we have not, upon the whole, made so much use of normalization as Fsb.; still we have, without mentioning it in the notes, printed Cingalese ṃñ as ññ, naṅgara as nagara, n as ṇ (in a

$B^{m} = B^{ai}$: (p.) 1 (note) ^{2}, $4^{4,8}$, 5^{9}, 6^{6}, 7^{14}, $8^{1,6,7,8}$ (but = our text in v. 51^{a}), 10^{10}, 11^{8}, $12^{1,8}$, $13^{3,10}$, $14^{12,14,16}$, 15^{2}, $16^{5,11}$, 18^{4}, $20^{3,6,7}$, $21^{2,3,4,5}$, $22^{1,9,13,14}$, $23^{11,15}$, 26^{7}, 28^{1}, 29^{2}, $30^{4,8}$, 31^{6}, 32^{11}.

$B^{m} = B^{i}$: 5^{8}, 6^{10}, 7^{16}, $10^{5,11}$, 15^{12}, 19^{5}, $20^{1,5}$ $22^{5,8}$, 23^{13}, $25^{2,16,17}$, $26^{6,12}$, 32^{7}.

$B^{m} = B^{a}$: 9^{6}, 10^{9}, 13^{5}, 18^{3}, $22^{3,11}$, 24^{3}.

$B^{m} = C^{kb}$: 17^{5}; $= C^{k}$: 25^{10}; = Pj.: 29^{5}.

Further note the following readings of B^{m}: v. 20^{c} saheyyum, 28^{c} chetuṃ, 38^{c} vaṃsakkaliro, 52^{a} khupipāsa, 52^{b} daṃsasariṃsape, 53^{a} yūkāni, 55^{a} diṭṭhīvisukāni, 64^{b} pacchinna-, 65^{c} appaṭibandha-, 74^{b} sandālayitvāna, p. 13, note ^{5} pavattati, 15^{8} cicitāyati citacitāyati, 15^{13} dakkhantīti, 15^{14} evam eva, v. 91^{b} Gotama, 92^{d} dhammadessi, 98^{a} and 124^{a} yo mātaraṃ pitaraṃ vā, 102^{a} bahukavitto, 108^{c} dussati, 121^{b} pathasmiṃ, 121^{c} hantā, 130^{c} vā instead of vācā (so also B^{ai}), 138^{a} yasaparamappatto, 143^{c} suhujū, 146^{a} -bhūtâtthi, 153^{b} dibbā, 157^{d} riccati, 163^{a} vijjāya c' eva, 165^{a} enījaṅghaṃ, 166^{b} anapekhīnaṃ, 166^{d} maccupāsa (so also B^{ai}).

single MS.), and neglected Burmese readings like brahmaṇo, kammunā, i for ī, when not standing in end-syllables, etc.[1] Haplographies, dittographies, and similar clerical errors have generally been omitted, when occurring only in a single MS., and likewise several other various readings of minor importance—e.g., Cingalese t = n, h = bh, and Burmese t = th, etc.

As everyone engaged in studies about Sutta-Nipāta must incessantly have recourse to Professor Franke's excellent concordance,[2] so also we are glad to acknowledge its great benefit to us through our whole work. We feel satisfied that it has been possible to us now to make this text accessible to the public, after it has, for some years, been out of print, and our best thanks are due to Professor Rhys Davids, not only because he has earnestly urged us to take up this work, but has also made it possible to us to make use of the commentary in full by sending us the Cingalese paper transcript.

Copenhagen,
January 23, 1918.

In addition to what has been said above of the present edition, I beg it remembered, that although it is, on every single point, the result of a constant collaboration of both of us, Mr. Smith has taken upon himself alone the collation of C^k and the transcription of Pj., of which he intends to prepare a complete critical edition as soon as sufficient MSS. are accessible to him.

D. ANDERSEN.

[1] It would, of course, in this respect, have been more practical to use the same method as followed in the edition of Sumaṅgala-Vilāsinī (see vol. i., p. xiii. foll.), but for the sake of the editio princeps we did not consider it advisable to go so far.
